Order Directing Entry of Final

ECF Nos. 15, 17, 18, 20, 21

11 The plaintiffs are employee-benefit trust funds that provide benefits to employees 12 who perform work that is covered by various construction-industry collective bargaining 13 agreements (CBAs). Defendant Emmanuel Environmental Inc. is subject to such an 14 agreement, which required the company to make timely contributions to the Trust Funds 15 on behalf of each employee performing work covered by the CBA. The company fell 16 behind on its payments and its principal, Romelle Emmanuel, entered into a settlement 17 agreement with the Trust Funds and executed a Stipulated/Consent Judgment, which 18 Romelle personally guaranteed.<sup>1</sup> When they failed to make the required payments under

1 the settlement agreement, the Trust Funds filed suit against both Romelle and his 2 company for ERISA violations and sought to enforce the consent judgment.<sup>2</sup>

3 Default was eventually entered against the company, and Romelle stopped 4 responding to this litigation. He neither appeared for his deposition nor responded to 5 requests for admissions. On December 2, 2024, the Trust Funds filed a motion for 6 summary judgment on their claims against Romelle.<sup>3</sup> He responded with a two-page 7 motion to dismiss,<sup>4</sup> which the Trust Funds move to strike as untimely.<sup>5</sup> While all of 8 those motions were pending, the Trust Funds sought—and obtained from the Clerk of 9 Court—a default judgment against the company for $142,989.00.<sup>6</sup> But because the Trust 10 Funds weren't seeking a sum certain (their ask included a large chunk of attorneys' fees), 11 they ask this court to strike the clerk's perfunctory default judgment and reconsider their 12 motion and attorneys' fees request in a proper order.<sup>7</sup>

13 I deny Romelle's pro se motion to dismiss as untimely and unsupported, but I also 14 liberally construe it as his response to the summary-judgment motion. Unfortunately, it 15 falls far short of demonstrating a genuine issue of fact, so I grant summary judgment 16 against him and in favor of the Trust Funds and deny as moot the motion to strike. I then

4 Discussion

5 A. Romelle Emmanuel’s Motion to Dismiss Is Untimely and Unsupported.

6 Rule 12(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (FRCP) sets a deadline for 7 filing a motion to dismiss that challenges the legal or factual basis for a lawsuit. That 8 rule prohibits a defendant from filing such a motion after he answers the complaint.<sup>8</sup> 9 Romelle answered the Trust Funds’ complaint in this consolidated action on April 5, 10 2024.<sup>9</sup> His motion to dismiss wasn’t filed until eight months later,<sup>10</sup> so it is fatally 11 untimely.

12 Even if the motion were timely, it fails for a separate reason: it is unsupported.
13 This district’s local rule 7-2(a) states that motions “must be supported by a memorandum 14 of points and authorities.” Romelle’s two-page motion cites no authorities and consists 15 of an unsigned (let alone unsworn) factual account of alleged misrepresentations.<sup>11</sup>
16 Because this submission falls short of establishing a legal basis to dismiss the claims

1 against Romelle, it is denied for that reason, too. And because I deny the motion to 2 dismiss, I also deny as moot the Trust Funds' motion to strike it.<sup>12</sup>

3 B. The Trust Funds have shown that there are no genuine issues of material 4 fact and that they are entitled to judgment against Romelle Emmanuel as a matter of law.

5 There are two claims in this case. The first alleges a violation of the Employee 6 Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), 29 U.S.C. § 1145 against Emmanuel 7 Environmental, Inc. only.<sup>13</sup> The second alleges that both the company and Romelle 8 breached their settlement agreement, rendering them "liable to the Trust Funds for unpaid 9 contributions, interest, liquidated damages, audit fees, and attorneys' fees, as outlined in 10 the Settlement Agreement."<sup>14</sup> The Trust Funds move for summary judgment against 11 Romelle, arguing that it has established the company's liability under ERISA—for which 12 Romelle is individually responsible based on his personal guarantee.<sup>15</sup>

13 1. Summary judgment is appropriate when there are no genuine, 14 material disputes about the facts and the movant is entitled to judgment
as a matter of law.

15 Summary judgment is appropriate when the pleadings and admissible evidence 16 "show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the movant is entitled 17 to judgment as a matter of law."<sup>16</sup> "By its very terms, this standard provides that the

1 mere existence of some alleged factual dispute between the parties will not defeat an 2 otherwise properly supported motion for summary judgment; the requirement is that there 3 be no genuine issue of material fact.”<sup>17</sup> A fact is material if it could affect the outcome of 4 the case.<sup>18</sup>

5 On summary judgment, the court must view all facts and draw all inferences in the 6 light most favorable to the nonmoving party.<sup>19</sup> When the parties moving for summary 7 judgment bear the burden of proof, like the plaintiffs do here, they “must come forward 8 with evidence [that] would entitle [them] to a directed verdict if the evidence went 9 uncontroverted at trial.”<sup>20</sup> If they do, the burden shifts to the nonmoving party—here, the 10 defendant—who “must present significant probative evidence tending to support phis] 11 claim or defense.”<sup>21</sup> As FRCP 56(c)(1) explains, the defendant can’t just rest upon 12 allegations or argument; rather he must “cit[e] to particular parts of materials in the 13 record, including depositions, documents, electronically stored information, affidavits or 14 declarations, stipulations . . . , admissions, interrogatory answers, or other materials” or 15 “show[] that the materials” that the moving party “cited do not establish the absence . . .

4 2. *The record contains no genuine dispute about Romelle Emmanuel’s liability for his company’s ERISA violations.

5 The Trust Funds argue that Emmanuel Environmental, Inc. is liable for 6 delinquencies during two separate periods of time. The first is its failure to make the 7 required employee-benefit contributions to the funds (as required by the CBA known as 8 the Master Labor Agreement between the Nevada Contractors Association and the 9 Laborers International Union of North America No. 872<sup>22</sup>) for work performed in 10 December 2022 and January 2023. The company acknowledged its liability for this 11 $7,194.00 deficiency in a June 2023 settlement agreement, and it also agreed (1) to make 12 $1,000 monthly payments until it was paid off and (2) to execute a stipulated consent
13 judgment for that amount.<sup>23</sup> In that stipulated consent judgment, Romelle personally 14 guaranteed the company’s obligations, “agree[ing] to be jointly and severally personally 15 liable for payment of this judgment in the event that [the company] defaults or otherwise 16 fails to pay the amounts owed under” it.<sup>24</sup> The company made one monthly payment<sup>25</sup>
17 but no more, so the Trust Funds filed the stipulated consent judgment to enforce it.<sup>26</sup>

1 A second date range of delinquencies was discovered by an audit conducted by the 2 Trust Funds, which revealed that the company owed more than another $65,000 for 3 unpaid contributions, interest, liquidated damages, attorney's fees, and audit fees for the 4 period of March 15, 2022, to December 31, 2022.<sup>27</sup> A new settlement was then 5 negotiated for Romelle to pay off the new, aggregate total of $85,331 in $10,000 monthly 6 installments.<sup>28</sup> The first $10,000 check bounced,<sup>29</sup> and though Romelle promised that a 7 replacement cashier's check was forthcoming, it never materialized.<sup>30</sup>

8 During discovery, the Trust Funds served upon Romelle a set of requests for 9 admissions that he never responded to. His silence means that the following facts are 10 deemed admitted:<sup>31</sup>

- 11 • Fringe benefit contributions for the company's employees were unpaid from 12 March 15, 2022, through December 31, 2022, and also for the two work 13 months of December 2022 and January 2023;
- 14 • The June 5, 2023, settlement agreement between the company and the Trust 15 Funds, with Romelle acting as personal guarantor, was the settlement 16 agreement that he signed on behalf of himself and the company;
- 17 • The payment obligations in the June 5, 2023, settlement agreement were not

1 satisfied; and

- 2 • Romelle was given the chance to review and correct the audit findings.<sup>32</sup>

3 In an action to enforce payment of delinquent contributions under a CBA, 4 § 1132(g) of ERISA requires the court to award the plan the unpaid contributions, interest
 5 on them, attorney's fees, and liquidated damages.<sup>33</sup> The evidentiary submissions 6 attached to the Trust Funds' motion for summary judgment—which include requests for 7 admissions, emails, settlement agreements, checks, CBAs, and the declaration of Trust 8 Funds counsel Christopher M. Humes, Esq., who attests to the authenticity of the exhibits 9 and establishes this event timeline—demonstrate that they could establish through 10 admissible evidence at trial that the company owes the Trust Funds the following 11 amounts for the months of December 2022 and January 2023:

- 12 • $5,370 in unpaid employee benefit contributions; 13 • $1,566.08 in interest (based on the 14% simple-interest rate contained 14 in the Trust Fund documents);<sup>34</sup> and 15 • liquidated damages in the amount of an additional $1,566.08,

16
 17 <sup>32</sup> ECF No. 15-14.

18 <sup>33</sup> The language of 29 U.S.C. § 132(g)(2)(C) provides for an additional “amount equal to 19 the greater of” the amount of interest on the unpaid contributions or liquidated damages 20 in an amount not to exceed 20% of the unpaid contributions. Here, the interest amount ($1,529) exceeds a 20% liquidated-damages amount ($1,074), so it's the interest amount that controls this calculation.

21 <sup>34</sup> See 29 U.S.C. § 1132(g)(2)(B) (authorizing discretionary award of interest on 22 delinquent contributions); see also ECF No. 15 at 9 (identifying the controlling documents). Interest is calculated from February 20, 2023, through March 21, 2025, at $2.06/day.

1 for a total of $8,502.16. But the Trust Funds have also shown that payments of $3,000
 2 were made toward that sum,<sup>35</sup> so the total amount due for the period of December 3 2022 and January 2023 is just $5,502.16. The record also shows without dispute that 4 Romelle personally guaranteed that he would cover these amounts owed by the 5 company.<sup>36</sup>

6 That same proof establishes that the company failed to pay $49,887 in employee-7 benefit contributions for the period of March 15, 2022, through December 31, 2022.<sup>37</sup> 8 This sum was confirmed by an audit,<sup>38</sup> and Romelle is deemed to have admitted that the 9 independent auditor “worked with” him “to correct any errors in” that audit.<sup>39</sup> Fourteen 10 percent interest on those delinquent contributions nets $15,505.34,<sup>40</sup> and again that 11 interest amount exceeds a 20% liquidated-damages figure, so the Trust Funds are entitled 12 to an additional award of $15,505.34, plus the cost of the audit, which was $4,254.<sup>41</sup> 13 That brings the total award for the period of March 15, 2022, through December 31, 14 2022, to $85,151.68.

1 The record is less clear that Romelle personally guaranteed the amounts for this 2 period because there is not a signed consent judgment that corresponds to it like there is 3 for the December 2022 and January 2023 range. But the proof that the Trust Funds has 4 presented establishes by a preponderance of the evidence that he so agreed. An email
5 thread from November and December 2023<sup>42</sup> reflects that the Trust Funds had negotiated
6 a with an Emmanuel Environmental, Inc. representative the settlement agreement 7 attached as Exhibit 8 to the motion. That written agreement contains a signature block 8 for Romelle to sign it on behalf of the company and states that “[t]he party signing this 9 Agreement for [the company] agrees to personally guarantee and to be personally liable 10 for payment of the debt . . . in the event [the company] defaults on any of its obligations 11 hereunder.”<sup>43</sup> The agreement required the company to pay off the debt in monthly 12 installments of $10,000.<sup>44</sup> The company made one $10,000 payment, but the check “was 13 returned for insufficient funds.”<sup>45</sup> In a December 28, 2023, email, Romelle apologized 14 and explained that he had money coming in but it “did not hit the account in time,” and 15 he promised, “[w]e will get you a cashier’s check from the bank.”<sup>46</sup> This conduct 16 demonstrates that Romelle meant to be bound by the terms of this new settlement 17 agreement, which included his personal guaranty.

1 Nothing in Romelle’s motion to dismiss—which I liberally construe as his 2 opposition to the motion for summary judgment—establishes a genuine issue of fact to 3 defeat summary judgment. In it, he recounts that he was wrongly told by “Harvey and 4 Rojelio at the Cracker Barrel”<sup>47</sup> that he could “perform a project as non-union if it’s not 5 on the Las Vegas Strip.”<sup>48</sup> I take this as Romelle’s assertion that he was under the 6 misimpression, based on a conversation with union representatives, that he didn’t have to 7 make contributions to the Trust Funds for this work.

8 But just saying so at this juncture in the litigation is not enough. FRCP 56 9 requires at the very least that factual assertions be contained in a sworn statement or 10 declaration in order to create a genuine dispute,<sup>49</sup> and Romelle has not provided one.
11 And though he concludes his submission with the statement, “[w]e are kindly asking for a 12 lawyer, more time or a jury that can hear this case,”<sup>50</sup> FRCP 56(d) permits the court to 13 grant more time to respond only “[i]f a nonmovant shows by affidavit or declaration that, 14 for specified reasons, [he] cannot present facts essential to justify [his] opposition,” but 15 Romelle’s brief falls far short of that threshold.<sup>51</sup> And, unfortunately, this court lacks a 16 stable of gratis attorneys to appoint in ERISA cases for pro se plaintiffs like Romelle.

1 In sum, the Trust Funds have established that Emmanuel Environmental, Inc.
 2 breached its ERISA obligations, entitling the Trust Funds to an award of $90,653.84
 3 against the company and Romelle Emmanuel, jointly and severally. So I grant summary 4 judgment in favor of the Plaintiff Trust Funds and against Romelle Emmanuel in this 5 amount.

6 C. The Trust Funds have established their entitlement to a default judgment 7 against Emmanuel Environmental, Inc. that includes an award of 8 attorneys' fees.

9 The evidence above, the allegations in the complaint that were deemed true 10 against Emmanuel Environmental, Inc. when default was entered against it,<sup>52</sup> and the 11 additional proof attached to the motion for default judgment support the entry of default 12 judgment against the company. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 55(b)(2) permits a 13 plaintiff to obtain default judgment from the court if the clerk previously entered default 14 based on defendant's failure to defend.<sup>53</sup> The court has discretion to enter a default 15 judgment,<sup>54</sup> which is guided by the seven factors identified by the Ninth Circuit in Eitel v.
McCool:

16 (1) the possibility of prejudice to the plaintiff; (2) the merits of 17 plaintiff's substantive claim; (3) the sufficiency of the complaint; 18 (4) the sum of money at stake in the action; (5) the possibility of a 19 dispute concerning material facts; (6) whether the default was due to excusable neglect; and (7) the strong policy underlying the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure favoring decisions on the merits.<sup>55</sup>

20 <sup>52</sup> ECF No. 11.

22 <sup>54</sup> Aldabe v. Aldabe, 616 F.2d 1089, 1092 (9th Cir. 1980).

23 <sup>55</sup> Eitel v. McCool, 782 F.2d 1470, 1471–72 (9th Cir. 1986).

1 As default has already been entered in this case, this court must take all of the 2 complaint's factual allegations as true, except those relating to damages, for which the 3 court may take additional proof.<sup>56</sup>

4 The Trust Funds have shown that the Eitel factors favor the entry of default 5 judgment against the company. The company's failure to meet its obligations under the 6 CBA or participate properly in this action suggests that the Trust Funds will suffer 7 prejudice if default judgment is not entered because they will likely have no other 8 recourse for recovery. The merits of the claims and sufficiency of the complaint also 9 weigh in favor of the Trust Funds because they have robustly pled—and as demonstrated 10 above, proven—their claims against the company. While the sum of money at stake in 11 this action is a neutral factor here, and the strong public policy favoring decisions on their 12 merits cuts against entry of a default judgment, the remaining factors support one. The 13 default was not due to excusable neglect; rather, it was entered after the company was 14 given ample opportunity to retain counsel to represent it as the law requires. And while 15 Romelle's motion to dismiss reflects that he believes that the company wasn't under an 16 obligation to make contributions for the work that forms the basis for this consolidated 17 action, he hasn't shown that this dispute is material or could support any legal defense.

18 So I find that the Trust Funds are entitled to a default judgment against Emmanuel 19 Environmental, Inc. in the amount of an award of $90,653.84, based on the analysis of 20

1 the claims and evidence in section B above. I thus grant the request to set aside the Clerk 2 of Court's entry of default judgment [ECF No. 20] and replace it with this award. And 3 because the Trust Funds have indicated their intention to seek an award of attorneys' fees 4 against Romelle in a separate, forthcoming motion, I deny the portion of the motion for 5 default judgment against the company seeking attorneys' fees. That denial is without 6 prejudice to the Trust Funds' ability to bring a single motion for an award of attorneys' 7 fees and costs against all parties collectively.
